

KS2 RESOURCE 2

A

It's your friend's birthday party. You spend a long time choosing them the perfect present. You give it to them. They don't say thank you. How do you feel?

B

It's your birthday and your best friend buys you a present. You forget to say thank you. How do you think they feel?

C

Your friend's mum gives you a lift to football practice after school. You forget to say thank you. How do you think your friend's mum might feel?

D

Your mum gives you and your friends a lift to football practice. You friends don't say thank you to her. How do you think your mum feels?

E

You fall out with your friends at school. You've got nobody to play with. The teaching assistant helps you and your friends to make up. You feel much better, but you forget to say thank you. Why would it be a good thing to say thank you?

F

The caretaker has lost their car keys. They are looking for them at break time. You and some of your friends give up part of your break time to help them look. You find them and give them back to the caretaker. They don't say thank you. How do you feel?

G

You help your mum find a book she thought she'd lost. She is very grateful when you find it for her. She says a big thank you and you can tell she is really happy. How does that make you feel?

H

You've lost one of your favourite games. You can't find it anywhere. Your mum helps you find it. You're so pleased. You say thank you over and over. Your mum looks very happy. How do you feel about that?

I

It's your mum's birthday and you really want to make her a cake. You don't know how so your dad agrees to help you. It turns out really well and you're really happy. You thank your dad for helping you. How do you think he feels about this?

J

It's your birthday and your little brother makes a huge effort to make you a cake. You're really pleased and say a huge thank you. He looks so happy that you like it. How do you feel about this?

Send a free thank you e-card at www.thankateacher.co.uk

